Portable Secondary Containment

Tax day is past! Did you get your return in on time?

EPI is now producing portable secondary containment systems that can be used for any kind of temporary containment. The portable berms can be folded for easy transportation to your project location, and can be easily cleaned, refolded and transported to the next delivery location. They are ideal for bulk liquid transport applications for secondary containment under connections during loading and unloading, or other leak containment during transfer. Excellent for oil field service applications also. For more information, contact Dan Rohe toll free at 800-OK-LINER.

Its mid April already and July will be here before we know it. Fred Rohe will be traveling to Colombia for engineering presentations on Constructing with PVC Geomembranes. If you are interested in attending a training session or having one presented to your organization, just give us a call or send an email to EPI or Filmtex. EPI is also developing plans to make presentations in Colombia and Peru this coming September.
