Quality By Everyone

At EPI quality products and expert service are our top business priority. Now that we are relocated in our new facility we have made timely improvements in how we implement this in all of our jobs.

Our brand new QC lab is located in the center of all the action. That means it is literally right in the middle of our production floor. It is the glass enclosed hub of all fabrication welding. We have added TV monitors on each fabrication line that give constant, real time information directly from the tensiometer to our fabrication personal. Constant, watchful eyes on testing being done at that very moment on welds just completed.

A new communication system throughout the building links all employees and provides sophisticated, real time monitoring of all operations.

Charter cable service provides our link to all aspects of voice and video communication within the building and to the rest of the world.

New safety facilities have been installed and stocked with everything needed to insure quick response to any emergency. The quality of our employee safety training is a top priority.

Did you know that EPI now has climate controlled trailers to house field test equipment for on the job weld testing? We are equipped to provide your site the same laboratory testing and quality control available in our Traverse City geosynthetics lab.
